The results from the hand calculations agree. The program establishes the clockwise moment as positive; therefore it gives a reflection of my moment diagram across the x-axis. Other than that the values it calculated are the same.